One More For Herb

It was the sixth consecutive victory for Herbert Thormahlen, the sidewheeling Scandinavian pitcher, the coolest youngster that ever mounted the mound. Tobin caused him the only real chunk of trouble when he slapped a home run into the right field stands in the fourth inning and tied the score. Ballade of July First

It may be in the good old days You were some kid-and let 'er fly; It may be through the summer haze That you were very seldom dry; Brandy or Bourbon-Scotch or rue-But now a shadow stalks the moor-For though you still have a supply, The Water Cart is at the door.

Ah, once it fell in crimson sprays To lift your weary soul on high: And when you fell into a daze, A swig or two would get you by: Or so you thought, with yearning eye Who trailed the highball's open spoor. The far winds only catch your cry-The Water Cart is at the door.

There was a time, along old ways. The cabaret once caught your eye; With splitting head and sunken gaze The gray dawn made you wish to die, "Never again," I've heard you sigh While morning's pale beams graced the floor; You'll mean it soon-and this is why The Water Cart is at the door.

We took it once-or left it shy-Our choice to-day is pretty poor-But get aboard and have a try-The Water Cart is at the door.

Changed Details

There are two details which may have a bearing on this coming mêlée. One is that Willard is three years you have passed thirty-five is quite a spell. Another will knock each other out in the first round. is that Dempsey isn't a Moran. Moran absorbed the bulk of his reputation by picking on one man-Jeems Coffey. Whereas Dempsey has picked on a number of so-called aspirants, and in most cases he has hammered a number of splinters from their blocks.

Moran was game enough and forced most of the fighting. Dempsey will have to do the same-and Dempsey will, that being his artistic way of going about the job. Willard could see Moran's punches on their way toward his frontispiece, while Dempsey is may soon have to send for a few kegs of nitroglycerine Two-base hits—Roush, Bressler, Righter Parker.

Why was it that Mathewson, who was 6 foot 1 and perior pitching of Olsen and let their Trimble, however, hit into weighed 200 pounds, and who took the best care of final game slip away with hardly a play, Seeleck to Praun to Diamond himself, was out of the game at thirty-saven? Why protest. himself, was out of the game at thirty-seven? Why protest was it, or why is it, that most stars at thirty-six or thirty-seven are either out or barely hanging on?

The gentle art of battling, even for only twelve rounds, is a pretty fair call upon one's general physical portunity when they had men on the makeup. For Old Doc Time happens to be a persistent paths. Olsen pitched a la Mathewson makeup. For Old Doc Time happens to be a persistent collector when he figures his pay is due.
